Reviews

This book will not be simple to get going on reading but extremely exciting to read through. Yes, it can be play, still an interesting and amazing literature. I am very easily could possibly get a delight of reading a written book.

Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Inquiry Into the Means of Establishing a Ship Navigation: Between the Mediterranean and Red Seas We learn also from the accurate levellings made by the French engineers that the mean height of the surface of the Red Sea is 2957 English feet above the mean height of the surface of the Mediterranean Sea near Tineh. Between the two seas the land of the Isthmus is stated to be remarkably flat with the exception of some scattered hillocks of drifted sand. For two or three miles from the Gulph, northwards, the ground is only elevated three feet above the high-water-mark of the Bed Sea and from thence it is said to decline gradually to the Mediterranean shore. The general character of the soil near the surface is stated to consist of a hard compact gravelly but the limit to which this kind of soil extends has not been very fully ascertained. Proceeding north from the head of the Gulph the direct line across the Isthmus passes for twelve miles through a valley or narrow plain confined on either side by rising ground, beyond which the remainder of the distance lies over fiat open plains, diversified only by hillocks of drifted sand, as already noticed. Somewhat to the westward of the direct line, and at the distance of twelve miles from the Gulph of Suez, commences a remarkable series of depressions of the land, the first extending about twenty-seven miles in a northwest direction, with a width of from five to seven miles. The bottom of this hollow or trough, though from 20 to 54 feet below the high-water-mark at Suez, is nearly destitute of water, containing...
